To whom it may concern:

The John S. McCain National Defense Authorization (NDAA) is a United States federal law that specifies the budget, expenditures and policies of the U.S. Department of Defense. The law, specifically Section 889, prohibits federal agencies, their contractors and grant or loan recipients from procuring or using any covered telecommunications equipment or services or any equipment, system, or service that uses covered telecommunications equipment or services as a “substantial or essential component of any system, or as critical technology as part of any system.”

The US Allegion brands are not subject to the NDAA. This includes the Allegion family of brands that encompass Schlage, Ives, Glen Johnson, LCN, Von Duprin, Falcon, ISONAS, and Pure Access and ENGAGE technology.

For more information, including a declaration of NDAA compliance letter required for proposal, procurement, or contract assurances, please contact st-govtservices@allegion.com.
